A CRISIS IN KENTUCKY

A crisis has come in the affairs of Kentucky. A major crisis, too, it is, if one may judge from the big headlines in the papers of the state.

Of course, we all know that Kentucky has been facing a crisis for these many months. But this is a crisis of crises. I am not speaking of the school situation, bad as it is, nor of the relief situation, which could scarcely be worse. I am speaking of another crisis, which has just come up, and one which is unexpected and full of peril.

The crisis—not to hold my readers in suspense too long—is that which arises from the fact that the chief clerks of the house and the senate in the Kentucky general assembly threaten to resign their positions if some relief is not obtained.

These clerks are J. Ervin Sanders of the house and Byron Royster of the senate. The Frankfort correspondent of the Associated Press informs a palpitating world that he has it on good authority that these two indispensable cogs in the machinery of the state government are seriously considering resigning unless a decision of Judge H. Church Ford, made in Georgetown Thursday, to the effect that these gentlemen cannot draw more than five thousand a year each from the state, is rescinded or abrogated.

No doubt indeed they are seriously considering putting in their resignations. No doubt they will think of it more seriously yet before they take their rash step.

The auditor, J. Dan Talbott, recently refused to pay claims of the two clerks in connection with the special session of the legislature, because Royster had already drawn more than $5,000 since the first of the year, and Sanders lacked only $13.75 of having drawn that amount, which is the constitutional limit of salary or commissions for an officer of the state.

Of course, it might be possible to obtain two more men who would accept those jobs which pay only a measly $5,000 for the four or five months' work done; but in the meantime the commonwealth of Kentucky is teetering on the edge of chaos as the rumors fly thick and fast around Frankfort that the clerks will resign in order to show their displeasure at this high handed action of the state auditor.

If they do resign, I believe substitutes could be found in Fulton even, if no other part of the state has any candidate for these ill paid jobs. Many men would consider it an honor to serve in these capacities, and would even be mildly grateful for the desirable salary of five thousand dollars attached to the jobs.—Fulton Leader.

PUBLIC SERVICE

When men use place for selfish gain And power their pursues to enrich, They leave on freedom's robe a stain Blacker than is the blackest pitch. The thief who breaks the door at night And comes to steal from me or you At least has this defense of right: He gave no promise to be true.

Honor in public life must be Too sacred to be lightly laid On those who seek it selfishly To gather wealth with faith betrayed.

If freedom shall now splendors reach And not be dragged into the dust, This to our children we must teach: That public service is a trust.

MAKES MANY AUDITS

Frankfort, Ky., June 12.—Examinations and audits conducted by the state inspector and examiner's department since Nat B. Sewell was appointed as head of the department January 1, 1932, have resulted in collection of $154,086.35. Expense of conducting the office has totalled within that period $47,519.92.

A total of 491 reports have been made in which results of inspections have been revealed. Of that number 320 reports have been on examinations of various county governments. There have been 143 reports on the various departments of state government. Twenty-eight reports have been issued on the financial condition of the state treasury.

Honored at Richmond

Miss Nancy Helen Elam of Richmond, formerly of West Liberty, was honored as a graduate of the Madison high school by being chosen by the faculty as speaker of the class. Miss Elam was chosen from a class of 41. Her friends are pleased to hear of her receiving this high honor.

TRUCKERS MUST REGISTER

The Kentucky state code authority for the trucking code announces that registration of all trucks, drays, etc., for hire in Kentucky under the trucking code is now ready to start.

Thousands of truck owners who haul for hire, such as common carriers, contract carriers, transfermen, dump truck operators, etc., must come to the registration agency and register at once to comply with the provisions of the trucking code.

The code was signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt on February 25. The time limit for registration expires on June 13, 1934.

Under the provisions of the trucking code any owner of vehicles for hire receiving pay for work done must register as a member of the industry before June 13. Failure to register is a violation of the trucking code and punishable by heavy fines.

Kentucky has been divided into eight districts for the purpose of registration and owners may register at the office most convenient to them.

After registration form has been properly filled out, a tariff of minimum rates charged for work performed must be filed, and in case of highway transportation rates to all points to which commodities are accepted must also be filed.

When registering, registrant must pay an assessment of $3 per vehicle, which has been approved by the national recovery administration as his share of the expenses of administering the code.

The Kentucky code authority will then issue a certificate of registration and an insignia in form of a numbered metal plate, one to be attached to each vehicle as evidence that owner is operating under the trucking code. Any vehicle operating for hire after July 15 without insignia is violating the trucking code and is subject to its penalties.

Registration agencies have now been set up and are beginning to register members of the industry.

The Motor Truck club of Kentucky is the state agency handling all code affairs for the Kentucky state code authority with offices at 1103 Washington building, Fourth and Market streets, Louisville, Kentucky.

The following persons are members of the Kentucky state code authority: Chairman, W. L. Stodghill, Louisville; vice chairman, C. S. Howard, Ashland; secretary, Arthur Tabb, Louisville; and treasurer, C. H. Gutermuth, Louisville.

Registration for district no. 6 will be handled at the Ashland Transfer company warehouse in Ashland, Ky. District no. 6 includes the following counties: Boyd, Lewis, Greenup, Carter, Mason, Fleming, Rowan, Elliott, Lawrence, Morgan, Magoffin, Johnson, Martin, Floyd, Pike, Knott, Letcher.

Where Duty Lies

Neither the Barren fiscal court, the Glasgow Chamber of Commerce, nor any individual or collective group of citizens of Barren county has authority to release Representative Handy from any position he takes in the legislature. His obligation is to the people who elected him and to the platform of his primary campaign. Likewise, no group or individual, has a right to question his honesty or his motives, or to speak for him. The continued agitation now going the rounds in Barren county concerning his stand upon a certain question is accomplishing no good result. Leave your representative alone—both in Barren county, and while at Frankfort.—The Glasgow Times.

Returns to Dayton

R. D. Childers, who came here about a year ago from Dayton, Ohio, and engaged in the furniture business, has closed out and returned to Dayton, where he expects to live. Mr. Childers has had varied experiences during his stay here. Fair success in his business is in marked contrast with a matrimonial venture that went on the rocks. Mr. Childers has not been very well the last few months, and has longed for his former Dayton associations.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all my friends and neighbors for their expressions of sympathy and help in the death of my beloved husband; those who sent flowers and who rendered other assistance, and especially the American Legion.

Respectfully,
MRS. MAUD HORD

Miss Edna McKenzie entered the Morehead summer school Monday.

Income Tax Wins Favor

An income tax, levied in only about a dozen states before the depression, has spread to more than half of them during the past few years and is proving a more dependable source of revenue as the systems become better perfected, according to a survey of new tax methods published by the American Legislators' association.

At the present time 29 states tax the incomes either of corporations or of individuals, and 26 states levy a tax on both, according to the study, prepared by James W. Martin, director of the bureau of business research of the university of Kentucky. An increase in rates has also been put into effect by a number of states, the study shows.

Mr. Martin found four principal reasons for the growing popularity of the income tax. First, he said, studies which have been conducted in a number of states have shown that income taxes are "eminently fair" because they make the proportion of income paid in taxes by the rich more nearly equal to the proportion paid by the poor.

A second explanation of increasing income taxation, he said, "lies in the fact that states which have imposed such measures have enjoyed gradually increasing revenue as the efficiency of their administrations has grown."

A third reason, he found, was "the discovery that states levying taxes with low exemptions and steep graduated rates before the depression, have learned that their revenues were not wiped out by the depression as had been predicted. It is true that in some states," he added, "there was a decline, but in all states satisfying the conditions just outlined the drop in income tax revenues has been much less serious than the decline in revenues from intangibles."

Another explanation of the growth of income taxation, it was found, "rests on improvements in general government. If the practice of employing state workers because of political service is partly or entirely replaced by the practice of employing them because they know how to do their jobs well, income taxes automatically become better measures than they would otherwise be."

"There has been a general improvement in government during the last 15 years," the report added, "and it is only natural to find that income taxation has correspondingly grown in favor. Those commonwealths which have done away with the practice of appointing subordinate employees in the tax department on political grounds secure the most revenue. This situation is perhaps best illustrated in Massachusetts, New York, and Wisconsin, but a number of other states have shown themselves remarkably successful."

SAMUEL MCCLURE

Samuel McClure died at a hospital in Mt. Sterling June 6 after having been there for several days receiving treatment for blood poisoning.

Mr. McClure was 61 years of age and was a farmer and merchant at Licking River. He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Grace and Nell. A sister, Mrs. Dora Carpenter, also survives.

Funeral services were conducted at the home Thursday by Rev. Harlan Murphy of West Liberty. Mr. McClure was a member of Highland lodge no. 311, F. & A. M., and the body was laid to rest with Masonic honors.

FREE TRIP TO WORLD FAIR

The Courier is completing arrangements to offer a three days' World Fair trip to Chicago for securing a very few (probably ten) combination subscriptions to the Licking Valley Courier and the Louisville Herald-Post. See this office for particulars, Courier Publishing Co., West Liberty.

Federal Judge Dead

Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran died at his Maysville home on Tuesday of this week after an illness lasting several weeks. Judge Cochran was 80 years old and had presided over the federal court of the eastern Kentucky district for 33 years.

MAKING RAIN

Washington, D. C., June 11.—Mark Twain's oft-quoted remark about the weather, to the effect that "everybody talks about it but nobody seems to do anything about it," can be modified now, according to biologists and meteorologists who point out ways and means of increasing rainfall. These "rain makers" are no tricksters, scoundrelers or other fakirs, but authorities of proven engineering experience, according to a bulletin of the American Game association.

And all point out the necessity of increasing rainfall throughout the United States, particularly in the fast drying Middle West—the Dakotas and other adjacent states. The underground water table of the entire United States has fallen from six to sixty feet within the last few years.

What is the cause? Excessive drainage, these experts declare. And then go on to point out many contributing causes such as deforestation, silting of streams through erosion, and utter waste of surface water.

What is the answer? Restore as many drained areas as possible and create new water areas. This brings back the stored surface water, gives the sun a chance to "draw" water, the heat a chance to condense it and precipitate it in renewed rainfall somewhere near the "belt." It was drawn from Science is now finding that these belts vary from 25 to 100 miles. For instance, water drawn from a lake region will be carried in forming clouds by the prevailing winds, condensed and dropped, usually, within 25 to 100 miles over varying areas, depending upon the degrees of moisture and heat and velocity of the carrying winds.

By spotting the country thickly with lakes, ponds, sloughs, and other water holding areas, a large degree of control can be had over rainfall. By stopping the quick runoff by reforestation and restoration of soil, soil erosion can be reduced to a minimum, thus holding the water for absorption to replenish the underground table. In other words, these experts would merely follow the plan of nature, in fact restore it, before man upset it during the drainage craze. Build dams in creeks, non-navigable rivers, draws, scoop out low depressions, and make ponds. These will aid in bringing about control of rainfall, officials of the American Game association declare.

Mad Dog Scare

West Liberty is passing thru the second period of a more or less regular mad dog scare. A small bulldog belonging to Floyd Arnett was shot on Friday of last week after having gone either mad or crazy and quarrelling with and biting a number of other dogs. All dogs are in quarantine by edict posted by the police judge.

The Dome of the Rock

The Kubbet-es-Sakhra or Dome of the Rock, often incorrectly spoken of as the Mosque of Omar, is a shrine erected over a sacred rock at Jerusalem. Some authorities say that the "holy of holies" of the Temple of Jehovah also stood over this same rock.

THE HOUSE DEFAULTS

The Kentucky house of representatives on Friday of last week passed the sales tax, now known as the Gross Receipts Tax Bill, after having defeated it twice on previous roll call votes. Just before putting this bill on its final passage the house sent a revenue measure to raise the production tax on whisky from 5c to 15c a gallon back to committee with the implied effect of killing that bill.

The vote on the receipts tax bill was by a bare constitutional majority—51 to 47. The vote for the bill was made up of 34 Democrats and 17 Republicans. Against the bill were 37 Democrats and 10 Republicans. It will be noticed that from a party standpoint the Democrats were opposed to the bill and the Republicans in favor of the bill. A number of representatives voted for the bill who had been elected after declaring themselves opposed to this tax. C. C. May of Morgan county voted "No" and stands today crowned in victory, although supporting a lost cause.

The bill was received Monday by the state senate, where it is now receiving consideration. Here also a majority of the members are pledged against this form of taxation. The lieutenant governor, A. B. Chandler, who has been twice instrumental in defeating a similar measure, says "we've got a fine chance to defeat the sales tax bill." But the senate is organized against the lieutenant governor and at the time this is written no one can tell what will happen.

REVIVAL

A revival meeting started at the M. E. church Sunday night.

Rev. Davis arrived Monday and gave a rousing sermon that evening. The afternoon services at 3 o'clock are very inspiring. You will feel more like finishing up your day's work after attending this service. Come out every evening at 7:30 and hear these heart-searching messages.

Mr. Dayton, in charge of the song service, puts pep into this part of the worship.

Johnson Will Fight

The chairman of the state highway commission has secured a temporary injunction protecting him in his present position against the threatened discharge by Governor Laffoon. A hearing date has been set by the court to determine whether or not the injunction shall be made permanent. The authority was granted by the last general assembly by legislative enactment to the governor to dismiss any appointive state employee for cause considered sufficient by himself.

Miss Daisy Shaver, who had been attending school at Winchester, was home for the week end, and entered the Morehead summer school Monday.

Emergency Feed Crops

Dry weather may so reduce hay and pasture as to make necessary the sowing of such crops as Sudan grass, soybeans, cowpeas, sorghum, and millet in order to provide feed for stock.

A statement by Dr. E. N. Fergus of the college of agriculture, university of Kentucky, says that Sudan grass is undoubtedly the best crop for meeting a pasture emergency because it is drought-resistant and makes a surprisingly large amount of pasture.

It may be sown as late as July 15, the earlier seeding is preferable. Recommended rates of seeding are 25 to 30 pounds of seed to the acre. Lighter rates may be used, but the product is coarser. While the crop is recommended primarily for pasture or for cutting and feeding green, it makes a fair quality of hay if cut in the early head stage and thoroughly cured before storing.

Soybeans are probably the best emergency hay crop for moderately productive to good soils. With reasonable care, a hay of excellent quality can be made from this crop. It can be sown as late as July 1, but earlier seeding is better. Varieties normally used in Kentucky are Virginia, Midwest, and Laredo. Seeding solid at one to one and a half bushels to the acre is preferable to sowing in rows for cultivation, but the latter method requires but half as much seed. When sowing on land new to the crop, soybeans should always be inoculated.

Cowpeas also make an excellent hay, but are somewhat harder to handle than soybeans. However, they are better adapted to poorer soils and may be sown as late as July 15. The Whip-poorwill variety is generally available and satisfactory.

Ordinary sweet sorghum, or cane as it is generally known in Kentucky, will provide feed that is relished by all classes of livestock. If sowed before the middle of June, it may make considerable grain as well as stover; if planted during the latter part of June, it will produce an excellent fodder for fall and early winter use. It should be sowed in rows at 3 to 5 pounds of seed to the acre and cultivated like corn.

Millet makes a fair grade of hay and can be sown as late as August 10. It should be sowed, preferably by drilling solid, at a rate of about 30 pounds of seed to the acre.

Budgeting Beans

BEANS are so rich in protein that they can often be used as a main dish. But in those days it is a good plan to budget even so inexpensive an item as beans. Here are a couple of recipes, with their approximate costs, which will enable you to serve and enjoy this substantial food at slight expense. The first serves four people at a cost of less than forty-five cents.

New England Stuffed Tomatoes: Cut the stem end from four large firm tomatoes and scoop out the centers. Dust inside with salt and pepper. Stuff with the contents of a No. 2 can of oven-baked beans, and bind around the outside with a strip of bacon, holding it together with a toothpick. Top with four tablespoons grated cheese, and set in a hot oven for from twenty to twenty-five minutes.

Inexpensive Croquettes: The second recipe can be served to four people at a cost of about thirty-five cents. It is Boston Bean Croquettes with Cheese Sauce and Bacon: Mash the contents of a can of oven-baked beans, add one teaspoon chopped onion, salt, pepper and one and one-fourth cups soft crumbs. Form into croquettes and roll in fine crumbs, then in one slightly-beaten egg, and again in fine crumbs. Let stand at least fifteen minutes, then fry in deep fat (350 degrees) until brown. Serve garnished with four slices of bacon and the following

FAVORS SALES TAX

West Liberty, Ky., June 7, 1934
The Licking Valley Courier,
West Liberty, Ky.
Gentlemen:

Reading your issue of today in discussing the mass meeting held in the courthouse in this city a few days ago. You say "The Courier is unable to understand how any 'mass meeting' can presume to ask an honorable man to break a promise made to all the voters." Or to understand how any "hand picked" group of persons can morally claim to be a mass meeting.

In answer to this, I wish to say that if our representative made a promise, he made it only to the members of the Retail Merchants' association because nobody else asked him to make it or wanted him to make it. In other words he made it on his own initiative, hoping to get the support of the Merchants' association—and he got it.

Also answering your paragraph concerning a "hand picked" group of persons presuming to call themselves a mass meeting and speaking for the whole county, I notice that the Licking Valley Courier has taken that privilege to itself many times during the time that the sales tax has been discussed. If it hasn't assumed the sentiments of this county, I cannot understand English.

I also wish to state without fear of contradiction that if the sentiment of the citizens of Morgan county were respected, our representative would vote for the sales tax. I dare the Licking Valley Courier or Mr. C. C. May or the Retail Merchants' association to take a straw vote of the legal voters of Morgan county on this subject.

I have talked to people from every section of this county and I have never heard a single farmer of the county say he was against the sales tax, when he understood what the sales tax is and means to Morgan county. In fact they say they are for it heart and soul because it relieves them of the load that they have carried so far back that the mind of man "runneth not to the contrary." And not only that, if you will talk to the county merchants they will tell you that since we have been getting relief money they have had better business because it gives the poor man a few dollars that he could not get in any other way and he goes to the country stores with it the minute he gets it. And of course if the sales tax is not passed there will be no relief for this or any other county in Kentucky.

The legislature of Kentucky met in 1933 in extraordinary session and fought and defeated the sales tax. Pretended to give us some revenue but we have failed to see any results from that session and if they defeat the sales tax this year will be a repetition of last year. It simply means to Morgan county, to the merchants and farmers and the people in general, that if the sales tax is defeated Morgan county will be at a standstill. There will not be a dollar for anyone to spend or to buy with. If the sales tax is passed even if you have to pay three cents of it for taxes, we are getting the money given to us with which to pay it.

It can hurt no one and will be a great help to those who need help. A few days ago it was announced that the United States was putting on another work program in Kentucky and would start by putting 20,000 men to work that week. The Kentucky legislature met, defeated the sales tax, and the work program was dropped. Men with eager faces were asking me when the work program would start, anxious and begging for work and willing to pay any kind of tax in order to get something to feed their families and clothe them—and I have had to tell them that the Kentucky legislature is blocking every bit of work for them because they have promised—not the whole people nor the whole of their constituents, but a handful of merchants who "presume to call themselves" the whole state of Kentucky.

Well, men of Morgan county, there is one thing you can do. You can remember who knocked you out of work and out of relief and when election day rolls around again write on your ballots whether you are for the sales tax and something to eat and wear or whether you are against it and in favor of starvation and rags.

Morgan county owes almost half a million dollars and with one percent of the proposed sales tax going back to the counties, our proportionate part has been estimated to be $20,000 for the first year and at that rate, it will not take long for Morgan county to be out of debt without the harrowing experience of having our taxes raised every year by the supervisors and our property sold because we can't get enough money to pay them when they are due. You all know our county taxes and school taxes are the hardest burdens we have to bear and if the sales tax will relieve us of that it surely is a good thing.

"CANEYITE"

The above letter very ably presents the principal arguments for a sales tax. All these arguments are based upon false assumptions.

Taking a "straw vote" would be silly, and would settle nothing. Not a single candidate for either the senate or the house in this district publicly favored the sales tax. They knew the people were against it. Open charges were made in other districts that the governor's forces instructed their candidates to make public pledges against the sales tax so that they could be elected, but with the deliberate private intention of breaking those pledges when the governor should need their votes. The action of the house in passing the sales tax would seem to bear out these charges in at least a few cases, because a large majority of the house, when elected, was pledged against the tax.

If it were not so ridiculous, the second paragraph of the above letter would be a personal insult to Representative May. But Mr. May needs no defense. He kept his word. That promise was not given secretly to any political group, but publicly, that all voters might know where he stood.

One of the scare-tales of the sales tax is that a sales tax is necessary for relief. As well say that handkerchiefs and a ball and chain are necessary for freedom. The same house of representatives that passed the sales tax rejected a higher tax on whisky. The same forces that favor a sales tax oppose an income tax. The same bi-partisan gang that has been gobbling up the farmer's land and home now covets a percentage from his bread and overalls.

The way to relief is not in adding to the tax burden of the poor, but in shifting this burden to those who are able to bear it.

The issue is not between a sales tax and starvation. The issue is sales tax against economy in government, or sales tax against income tax.

As to Morgan county's debt, a state administration that has broken its promises to the people, and has plunged the state itself deeper into debt, is not worthy to be trusted with any more tax money, or with any affairs of Morgan county.

If we wished to build a house we would employ a builder and not a wrecking crew to do the job.

Ancient Coach Long in Use
Old railway coaches, like old soldiers, never seem to die; they merely fade away. The thought springs into being with the discovery of a sixty-one-year-old pullman sleeping car doing duty as a general storehouse on the western shore of Hudson bay. Records show that this hoary pullman was built in August, 1872, and it was named the "Conway." It ran on the old Eastern railroad of Massachusetts until 1880, when it was remodeled and renamed "Capitano." In its new state it boasted of a barber shop and a bathroom. In 1904, "Capitano" was sold privately, and at a later date was again renamed, this time "Marlborough." From then on its ways were devious until finally it got into the hands of a railroad contractor and through him to the Canadian National railways.

WHY Size of Your Hat Doesn't Affect Your Brain

There's a grain of truth in the adage: "Little head, little wit; big head, not a bit."

At least, that is what Professor C. Judson Herrick of the University of Chicago asserted before the anthropology division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. While admitting that measurements of the brain have offered but meager material as to its mental capacity, he referred to the old adage as having just a bit of truth in it, adding: "And those of us who wear small hats get such comfort as we can out of it."

He said that while a small, though significant correlation between brain size and general competence has been established statistically and within certain limitations, application to individual cases did not always bear out the findings in large groups.

Doctor Herrick said that it is generally agreed that there are between 10,000,000,000 and 14,000,000,000 nerve cells in the human brain. The job of the anthropologist, psychologist, physiologist and biologist is to discover the relation of each cell to the others. The cells are arranged in patterns, about 100 of which already have been mapped.

Until this is done, he said, man cannot hope to understand the meaning of weights, measurements, indices and formulae of brain research.—Chicago American.

Why People of District of Columbia Do Not Vote

Article 1, Section 3, of the Constitution provides that congress shall have power "to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever," in a district which may become "the seat of government of the United States." Since congress has the exclusive right to legislate on the local affairs of Washington, and since the Constitution does not confer the privilege of voting—even for President—upon the citizens of the District of Columbia, the residents of the District of Columbia are completely disenfranchised. Many maintain a legal residence in the state of their origin, and vote from there, or by mail. There is nothing to prevent a resident of Washington from holding a federal office.

Why Gas Meter Is in Yard

Gas meters often are placed conspicuously in the front yards of farm homes. It is because some farm homes are close to the road and some far back. The farmer has to maintain his own service pipes and the company charges him at the point the gas leaves its line and enters the farmer's line. The farmer usually gets his gas from a high pressure main line that chances to pass along the highway in front of his home, so a regulator to reduce the pressure is used with the meter.

Why Lindsey Was Barred

Judge Lindsey was barred from the Colorado courts on account of an accusation that he had been guilty of unprofessional, unethical conduct, embracing acceptance of fees while he was judge. The case cited was acceptance of fees in the case of the W. E. D. Stokes estate. Judge Lindsey's defense was that his connection with the Stokes case was "disinterested from the work of the juvenile court in which he was judge, and that he acted merely as arbitrator and mediator."

Why Cheshire Cheese Is Famous

It was a popular coffee house in the days of Joshua Reynolds, Samuel Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith and the great Londoners of that period. It was one of Johnson's favorite gathering places. In fact his memory is closely associated with this coffee house. One of Johnson's pipes is still exhibited to tourists who find their way down the narrow alley-like approach to the Cheshire Cheese.

Why Sailors Don't Wear Belts

Bluejackets in the United States navy wear neither suspenders nor belts with the blue trousers, says a bulletin issued by the Navy department. The trousers are made waist-tight fit. In the days of sailing ships when it was necessary to go aloft to furl or unfurl sail, it was not desired to have any loops or articles of clothing which might be caught on the marine spikes or pin rails.

Why Guide Rails Are Used

There is a little "island" formed by extra rails over a trestle or bridge on the inside of the other rails. The arrangement forms a protection against a street car or train going off the bridge. The inner rail will tend to straighten and guide the course of a street car off the rails until safely across the bridge.

Why Gold Seems Cold

The bureau of mines says that gold is not cold. It is merely a good conductor of heat. Therefore, when the temperature is lower than the temperature of your body, it appears cold, and when the temperature is higher, then its body appears hot.

Why Pass Is an "Annie Oakley"

Theater passes always have two holes punched through them and the nickname for passes (Annie Oakley) is an allusion to the accuracy of Annie Oakley's aim, for she often made a double perforation of a target with 179 shots.

BLAZE

June 11.—This section has had generous and refreshing rains thruout the past week, and crops are being put in fine condition by our farmers, and are showing promising growth.

Mrs. Farmer Lewis and Mrs. Jim Henry Lewis went to Middletown, O. Sunday, on a visit to relatives and friends.

Doctor and Mrs. George W. Bowling, of Chambers Station, Menifee county, spent the past week visiting relatives and friends in this community. Dr. Bowling was born and reared in this section, and Mrs. Bowling, a sister of Uncle Garn Bishop, is likewise a native of this community. They had not visited their homeland for more than twenty years. They were given a hearty welcome by relatives and oldtime friends.

Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Lear, who live near Blaze, have a mare and a Jersey cow that had run together in the same pasture all spring, and had become great chums. One night last week the mare gave birth to a colt, of which she immediately became very fond. The cow seemed as fond of the colt as the mare was. The next night the cow stole the colt from the mare and hid it in a remote part of the pasture where the mare couldn't find it. Mr. Lear had some difficulty separating the colt and the cow. Owing to the preference of the colt for the cow, the preacher was compelled to rent pasture for the cow on a neighboring farm.
